B'desh nabs killer of gay rights activist, blogger

Dhaka
Bangladesh police have arrested the main suspect in the murders of a gay magazine editor and a secular blogger who were brutally killed by militants for writing against radical Islamists in the Muslim majority country.

A joint team of Counter-Terrorism and Transnational Crime (CTTC) unit and Detective Branch of Police arrested Rashidun Nabi from a bus station in Sayedabad area in the capital last night, a police spokesman said today. Nabi is the main suspect in the murder case of Julhash Mannan, the editor of 'Roopban' (the only magazine in Bangladesh advocating gay rights), and blogger Nazimuddin Samad, who were killed in April, the spokesman said. Police claimed that Nabi is an operative of Ansarul Islam or Ansarulallah Bangla Team (ABT), which is said to be ide-

Four leaders of Bangladesh terror outfit have fled to India: Police

Dhaka: At least four mid-level leaders of the banned New Jamaatul Mujahideen Bangladesh militant faction, the group behind the July 1 Dhaka terror attack, have sneaked into India, Bangladesh police said.
The police, after raiding different places to arrest leaders and supporters of New JMB group, said that at least four out of 12 mid-level JMB leaders have sneaked into India while others remain out of their radar. The Jama'atul Mujahideen Bangladesh follows the ideology of Islamic State.
"Four of them left the country after the Gulshan attack and have now been staying in India," a high official of the police's Counter-Terrorism and Transnational Crime (CTTC) unit, requesting anonymity, confirmed to the Dhaka Tribune.—IANS ologically inclined to al-Qaeda.

Nabi was today sent on three-day remand by Dhaka Metropolitan Magistrate Md Maruf Hossain after police produced him in court with a 10-day remand prayer. Mannan, 35, a cousin of former foreign minister Dipu Momi and ex-protocol officer of the US embassy, was killed by armed assailants who entered his flat impersonating as courier company officials on April 25.

Nazimuddin, 28, who was a masters student of the state-run Jagannath University's law department, was hacked by machete-wielding militants before being shot dead on April 6. A day before the murder, he had expressed concerns over the country's law and order in a Facebook post. He was known to have been critical of state religion in the Bangladeshi constitution. He had been on a hit list of 84 atheist bloggers that a group of radical Islamists prepared and sent to Bangladesh's interior ministry.

Bangladesh has seen a spate of gruesome attacks on secular activists, religious minorities, bloggers and foreigners, many of whom have been hacked to death with machetes.

Meanwhile, a special tribunal today sentenced three Jamaatul Mujahideen Bangladesh (JMB) militants to 10 years imprisonment, seven years after their arrest from a hideout in rugged southeastern Khagrachhari hill district. "They are members of outlawed JMB who faced the trial in person under Explosive Act," a police officer said.—PTI

30 killed, 55 injured in bus collision in Pakistan

Lahore

At least 30 people were killed and over 55 others injured today when two speeding passenger buses collided head-on in Pakistan's southern Punjab province, rescue officials said.

The accident took place in Khanpur area of Rahim Yar Khan, some 600 kms from here around 6 am, media reports said. The incident occurred due to over speeding and claimed the lives of at least 30 people besides leaving over 55 people injured, rescue officials said. The bodies and the injured could only be recovered after cutting through the vehicles, Zafar Iqbal, district coordination officer of Rahim Yar Khan said.

Those injured have been shifted to hospitals in Rahim Yar Khan. Condition of some injured is stated to be serious, Radio Pakistan reported.—PTI

Blast in BASF chem plant triggers scare in Germany

Several missing, hurt as cops advise locals to stay indoors

Ludwigshafen (Germany)

Several people were missing and others were injured after an explosion today at a chemical plant at BASF's headquarters in western Germany, the firm said, advising local residents to stay indoors.

The blast, which occurred around 11:30 am (local time) and triggered a huge fire, happened during work on a pipeline, the global chemicals giant said in a statement. "Several people were injured. Some people are missing," BASF said. A large fire and a huge column of grey smoke could be seen rising from the site, a vast industrial complex with a harbour on the Rhine River.

Firefighters were still trying to extinguish the flames by 1900 IST while police had blocked off nearby roads, an AFP reporter at the scene said. "Emergency services from the whole region are on the scene to prevent the fire spreading to other parts of the plant," Ludwigshafen city authorities said in a statement. The company said residents in Ludwigshafen and nearby Mannheim should remain inside and shut doors and windows. Local authorities have also asked nurseries and schools to keep children indoors, but no evacuations have been ordered.

"We are still investigating the precise cause. The relevant authorities have been informed," BASF said. The site's steam cracker units, used in a chemical procedure to produce lighter hydrocarbons, have been shut down for safety reasons, it added. Ludwigshafen is a city of some 160,000 people located around 80 kilometres southwest of Frankfurt. City authorities said fire engines as well as a fireboat had been deployed to the scene. On its Twitter account, Ludwigshafen added that some residents had complained of respiratory irritations. An emergency hotline has been set up as well as an information tent. The Landeshafen Nord site where the explosion took place is a harbour used for the transportation of combustible fluids and liquefied gases. The company employs 36,000 people in Ludwigshafen. —AFP

Iraqi PM signals start of ops to drive IS from Mosul

Irbil (Iraq)

Iraqi Prime Minister Haider al-Abadi announced the start of military operations to liberate the northern city of Mosul from Islamic State militants today, launching the country on its toughest battle since American troops left nearly five years ago.

State TV aired a brief statement in the early hours on Monday, announcing start of the widely anticipated military offensive to drive IS out of Iraq's second-largest city. Broadcasts showed the prime minister, dressed in the uniform of the elite counterterrorism forces, speaking while flanked by senior military officers. "These forces that are liberating you today, they have one goal in Mosul which is to get rid of Daesh and to secure your dignity. They are there for your sake," he told the city's residents, using an alternate name for the militant group. "God willing, we shall win." The thuds of sporadic artillery shelling rumbled across the rolling Nineveh plains in the direction of Mosul, witnesses said. State TV broadcasted patriotic music within minutes of the announcement.

The push to retake Mosul will be the biggest military operation in Iraq since American troops left in 2011 and, if successful, the strongest blow yet to the Islamic State.

A statement on Al-Abadi's website pledged the fight for the city marked a new phase that would lead to the liberation of all Iraqi territory from the militants this year.—AP

US Prez election stressing out Americans, says study

Washington: The 2016 US Presidential election is a significant source of stress for over half the Americans, with those using social media more likely to be affected, according to a new survey ahead of one of the most adversarial contests in recent history. Daily coverage of US presidential election dominates every form of mass media.

The survey was conducted online among 3,511 adults aged over 18 living in the US by the American Psychological Association (APA). About 52 per cent of American adults reported that the 2016 election is a very or somewhat significant source of stress. "We're seeing that it doesn't matter whether you're registered as a Democrat or Republican - US adults say they are experiencing significant stress from the current election," said Lynn Bufka, APA's associate executive director for practice research and policy. The survey also showed that social media appears to affect Americans' stress levels when it comes to the election and related topics. Nearly 4 in 10 adults said that political and cultural discussions on social media cause them stress. In addition, adults who use social media are more likely than adults who do not to say the election is a very or somewhat significant source of stress.

Millennials and "matures" are the most likely to say the election is a very or somewhat significant source of stress. Survey findings show that election-related stress does not confine itself to one racial or ethnic group. Rather, it appears to manifest across groups - more so in some than others. —PTI

Move over ISS, China inches closer to operationalise its space station

Beijing

With the launching of its manned spacecraft, Shenzhou-11, into orbit in a project designed to develop its ability to explore space, China on Monday came a step closer to complete its first space station by 2020 and operationalise services two years later.

The spacecraft, launched from the Jiuquan Satellite Launch Centre, has two astronauts on board - Jing Haipeng, 49, who has already been in space twice, and 37-year-old Chen Dong. They will dock with the experimental Tiangong 2 space lab and spend 30 days there, the longest stay in space by Chinese astronauts.

China was earlier prevented from participating in the US-led International Space Station (ISS). With the ISS set to retire in 2024, the Chinese station offers a promising alternative, and China will be the only country with a permanent space station, which will be more "economically efficient and informationised" than the ISS, Zhou Jianping, Chief Engineer of China's manned space programme, told Xinhua news agency following the launch of Tiangong-2 on September 15 this year. It will be able to house a maximum of six astronauts at the same time and manned missions will become routine once the space station enters service, Zhou said.

Measuring 34.1 feet in length and up to 10.9 feet in diameter, the tube-like Tiangong-2 is hardly the size of a palace. The ISS, on the other hand, measures 357 feet end-to-end - equivalent to the length of a football field.

China also aims to send the Chang'e-5 probe to the moon, and to land a probe on Mars by 2021. —IANS
